How did the Fund perform during the reporting period?

- For the 12 months ended August 31, 2025, the Fund performed in line with its benchmark.
- Optimism in the U.S. about deregulation, tax cuts, and artificial intelligence was occasionally tempered by market concerns over rising interest rates, stretched equity valuations, and evolving trade policies. Although the Federal Reserve paused on cutting rates after December 2024, some progress on inflation and signs of a softening job market raised the prospect of more cuts to come.
- For the broad stock market, growth stocks generally outpaced value stocks. The performance of small-capitalization stocks lagged that of large- and mid-caps.
- Only five of the benchmark's 11 industry sectors contributed positively to results; industrials, financials, and consumer discretionary contributed the most. Energy, health care, and communication services were the biggest detractors.
