How did the Fund perform during the reporting period?

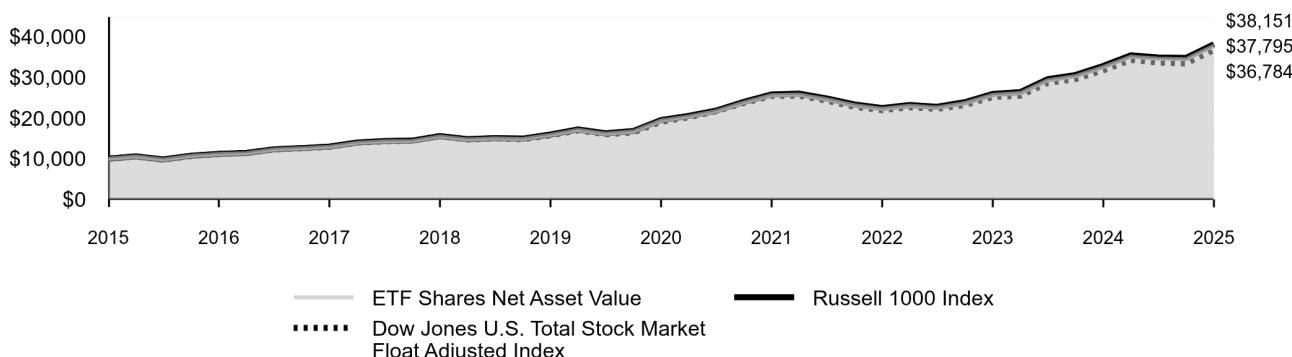

- For the 12 months ended August 31, 2025, the Fund performed in line with its benchmark.
- Optimism in the U.S. about deregulation, tax cuts, and artificial intelligence was occasionally tempered by market concerns over rising interest rates, stretched equity valuations, and evolving trade policies. Although the Federal Reserve paused on cutting rates after December 2024, some progress on inflation and signs of a softening job market raised the prospect of more cuts to come.
- Large-capitalization stocks outperformed their small- and mid-cap counterparts for the period. Both value and growth stocks posted positive returns, but growth handily outperformed value across capitalizations.
- For the Fund's benchmark index, 10 of the 11 sectors posted positive returns. Technology was a standout, and consumer discretionary, financials, and industrials were also strong contributors. Health care was the lone detractor.
